Who We Are and What We Do

- The National Trust for Historic Preservation (www.PreservationNation.org) is a non-profit membership organization bringing people together to protect, enhance and enjoy the places that matter to them. By saving the places where great moments from history – and the important moments of everyday life – took place, the National Trust for Historic Preservation helps revitalize neighborhoods and communities, spark economic development and promote environmental sustainability.

Who We Are and What We Do

The screenshot shows the website for the National Trust for Historic Preservation, specifically the Western Region page. The header includes the organization's name and tagline: "Helping people protect, and that matter to them." Below the header is a navigation bar with links: ABOUT US, RESOURCES, TAKE ACTION, ISSUES, TRAVEL & SITES, and SUPPORT US. The main content area features a large photo of a group of people standing in front of a historic wooden building. The text "THE NATIONAL TRUST WHERE YOU LIVE" is at the top of the photo. Below the photo, the text "Western Region" is displayed, followed by a list of states and territories: Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, and Pacific Island Territories. A paragraph describes the Western Region's mission: "The West is home to a host of incredible historic, architectural and landscape resources, from Angel Island in the San Francisco Bay to the Century Plaza Hotel, a modern gem in Los Angeles, to Alaska's Kennecott Mines. We support preservation in the region by providing information, guidance, organizational development, advocacy and financial assistance to communities and individuals." Below this text are two sections: "REGIONAL OFFICE UPDATES" and "WESTERN BLOG", each with a "View all" link. The "REGIONAL OFFICE UPDATES" section lists two grant reports: "Western Region Grant Report- October 2010" and "Western Region Grant Report- June 2010". The "WESTERN BLOG" section lists two blog posts: "Preservation Round-Up: Home is Where the Heart is Edition - 02/09/11" and "Schooner adventures: Sailing into the Next Century - 02/09/11". On the right side of the page, there is a "JOIN" button with the text "Become a member and help us save places that matter." and a "Resources" section with links to "Disaster Preparedness & Recovery", "Building", "Los Angeles County Preservation Fund", "Partners in Preservation - Seattle", "Preservation Land Database", "Technical Assistance", and "Weatherization Guide". There is also an "Issues" section with links to "Disasters", "Historic Schools", "Land Conservation", "Modernism - the Recent Past", "Public Lands", "Rural Heritage", and "Sustainability".

Preservation Leadership Training

PLT
Alexandria, Virginia

June 11-18, 2011

Preservation Leadership Training

LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

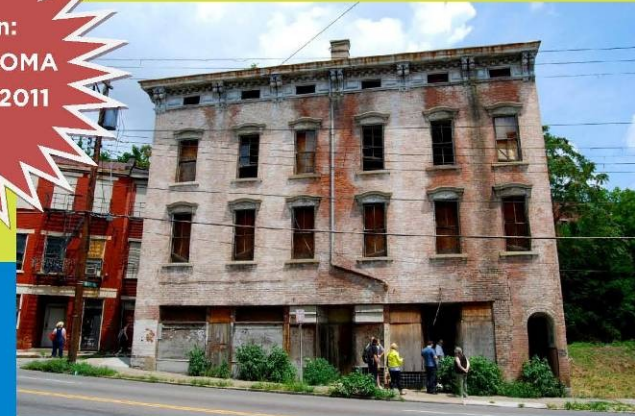

Preservation Leadership Training (PLT) is an intensive one-week experience tailored to respond to the needs of state and local preservation organizations and agencies. It emphasizes providing a participatory experience in leadership and organizational development techniques and the most up-to-date and effective information and training in current preservation practices, issues and action strategies.

Preservation Leadership Training

PLT/Advanced Tulsa, Oklahoma

August 6-13, 2011

Next Session:
TULSA, OKLAHOMA
AUGUST 6-13, 2011

Preservation Leadership Training/ADVANCED REAL ESTATE AND FINANCE

The proper balance between risk and reward is the financial test to be met in the rehabilitation of historic properties. This training examines the economic considerations in redeveloping a historic structure, the standards that must be met and their effect on the cost of the project, influences on the market for historic properties, and financial incentives available for rehabilitation and preservation. Participants will follow the progress of a prototype historic redevelopment project including examples and explanations of pro formas, financial considerations, and have the opportunity to apply this knowledge to projects located in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

ASIAN PACIFIC ISLANDER HISTORIC RESOURCES IN THE WEST

Projects funded by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, 1998-present

TEMPLE OF KWAI TAI, MENDOCINO, CA

In 2001 the National Trust's Western Office launched The Mosaic of Western Heritage, a commitment to use its programs and activities to promote awareness of the contributions made to the West by diverse populations and to increase public support for preservation of Western heritage. Building upon past successes in providing grants and technical assistance to a variety of Western sites, this multi-year initiative showcased community projects that advance public understanding of the West's untold stories. The initial focus of the Mosaic has been on sites associated with Asian Pacific Islander American (APIA) heritage.

Among the National Trust's signature programs are three grant funds – the National Trust Preservation Fund, the Johanna Favrot Fund for Historic Preservation, and the Cynthia Woods Mitchell Fund for Historic Interiors – that provide financial assistance to nonprofit organizations and government agencies. Following are brief descriptions of seed grants made to sites associated with Asian Pacific Islander American heritage in the West.

Arizona

POSTON INTERNMENT CAMP
BUILDINGS, PARKER

In 2003, the Ahakhav Tribal Preserve was awarded a $2,000 grant to hire a consultant to facilitate a three-day workshop to develop strategies to restore and preserve the existing Poston Internment Camp buildings, including an adobe school building. Participants included members of the Colorado River Indian Tribes, former internees, and residents of Parker. In 1942, 18,000 Americans of Japanese ancestry were sent to three concentration camps at Poston. In 2010 the Poston Community Alliance, based in Lafayette, California was awarded a $10,000 Southwest Intervention Fund grant to assist with protection of one of Poston's last remaining barracks and its relocation from Parker to its original location on the Colorado Indian Reservation in Arizona. A component of the Poston Restoration Project, the barracks will be used as an interpretive center to tell the stories of the Japanese American and Native American experiences in and around the camp during World War II.

GUARDIAN OF THE WESTERN GATE,
ANGEL ISLAND IMMIGRATION
STATION

Located in San Francisco Bay near Tiburon, the whole of Angel Island is a California State Park. The island is perhaps best known as home to Angel Island Immigration Station, a National Historic Landmark. Likened to an "Ellis Island of the West," the Immigration Station served as a major port of entry and processing and detainment center for hundreds of thousands of immigrants arriving from the Pacific routes throughout the years 1910-1940.

In particular, an estimated 175,000 Chinese immigrants passed through this site on their journey to gam saan, or "Gold Country," along with thousands of Japanese, Russian, and Indian immigrants.

Angel Island State Park was included among America's 11 Most Endangered Historic Places 1999 to highlight the challenges facing the park's historic resources, cultural landscapes, and trails, threatened by deferred maintenance, deterioration, and neglect. Subsequently, additional needed funds for rehabilitation of the Immigration Station were provided
